INTRODUCING THE ECO DESIGN RESOURCES OF SANTA CRUZ HEALTHY SCHOOLS PROGRAM

Dear Friend of Education,

At Eco Design Resources of Santa Cruz we believe that education is the key to creating a healthy and sustainable environment. Ecological awareness stems from a comprehensive understanding of the living systems that surround us, and the ways in which we impact those systems. Additionally, the environments in which we educate our children have been shown to have a major impact on their scholastic performance as well as their overall health. We take our role as educators and providers of healthy building materials seriously at Eco Design Resources and are excited to introduce our new Healthy Schools Program.

The program consists of the following three elements:

The primary component of the Healthy Schools Program is free pre-construction consultation services. It is important to specify healthy building material choices during the initial planning stages of any project. Our certified consultants are experienced in dealing with the healthier building choices and methods available in today's market. A member of our team can provide advice and estimation services specific to your project.

The second element of the program is intended to promote healthy indoor classroom environments. We offer a full line of non-toxic, zero VOC, formaldehyde-free interior construction materials and wall finishes. We are offering educational facilities pricing below standard contractor discounting in order to make these healthy building materials available and affordable for classroom applications.

The third component is focused on classroom outreach. Our knowledgeable staff will volunteer their time to lead participatory discussions, games, and presentations focused on renewable resources, energy conservation, waste reduction, and green technology.

Eligibility:

Both public and private institutions, including daycare and preschool facilities, are eligible for the Healthy Schools Program. For more information or to enroll in the program please contact Scott Farmer at Eco Design Resources of Santa Cruz.

Thank you for your time and for the great service you provide to our community.

Sincerely,

Scott A. Farmer, CGBP
